

My Dinner with Anton

When a 21st-century Evangelical and an 18th-century Russian Monk get together for an Italian meal, you know the conversation is going to take you to some unexpected places! I was, I have to admit, a little unsure about ringing somebody up who by rights ought to have been dead a good 150 years, but I was right out of inspiration for the Renewing Your Spiritual Passion three-day retreat I was supposed to lead. I was preached-out, dried-up, just nothing. I had no idea Anton would introduce me to the extraordinary St Seraphim of Sarov, a wild hermit who lived much of his life 200 years ago in the dense Russian forests. But his wisdom would weave its way into my heart, answer my difficult questions, and inspire me to great things. Poses all those difficult questions we may have longed to ask for ourselves. We come away enriched and encouraged to expect great things of God in our own lives. Most Revd & Rt Hon David Hope, Former Archbishop of York. Simple yet profound, foreign yet relevant. Churches of every streammissional and traditional, emerging and mainstream will find fresh vision, encouragement, and inspiration in its pages. Rt Revd Stuart Robinson, Bishop of Canberra & Goulburn, Australia. An appetizing model of discourse showing how orthodoxy deserves its place at the table of ideas, how it feeds the soul and inspires the spirit...indeed how, once one takes it inside oneself, one discovers something rather amazing you are what you eat! My advice in regard to Paul Wallis's entre?e is the advice God gave Ezekiel: eat this book! Dr. Ben Witherington, III, Amos Professor of NT for Doctoral Studies, Asbury Theological Seminary; Doctoral Faculty, St. Marys College, St. Andrews University, Scotland. If ever there were a book that is both charming and wrenchingly serious all at the same time, it is this record of a dinner with Anton. I can almost guarantee that you will savor as well as treasure this one. PHYLLIS TICKLE Publishers Weekly, USA Includes practical spiritual exercises for individuals or groups The perfect retreat in a book
