

A Confidence Carol

On December 30th, the lonesome and joyless Ethan Simmons is finishing up for the year at his dreary office job. His co-worker and crush, Bailey, invites him to a New Years celebration, but she storms out after Simmons goes on a bitter rant about resolutions and self-improvement in general. Finally escaping the office and catching his train home, Simmons convinces himself that he needs none of the glittery festivities of the season, and prepares for another solitary night in his apartment. Instead, Simmons is visited by his former roommate, Joseph Martin, who has been dead for four years. Martin explains that because he did not pursue a life of passion or purpose, he has been sentenced to roam the earth as a restless soul to make up for his wasted mortality. He informs Simmons that he will be visited by three spirits—the Ghost of Confidence Past, the Ghost of Attraction Present, and the Ghost of Lifestyle Future—that will show him the wrong of his ways. A literary remix of the Dickens classic, A CONFIDENCE CAROL is a poignant, kitschy, and honest contemporary tale of one man who conquers the limiting beliefs and insecurities found in all of us.
